"WE WILL NOT FORGET"

Worth Repeating

"Being confined like an animal in barbed wires, I've always had the greatest need to have openness—just freedom to be able to do as you please. It's one of the most precious things. It's worth suffering anything to preserve it."

—Morris Shoss,
World War II POW,
Confined two years

"The one thing in this country is freedom of a flavor no one else has ever tasted."

—Daniel Steckler,
World War II POW,
Confined four months

"Freedom is being able to say and think and do those things that I believe."

—Nick Rowe,
Vietnam POW,
Confined five years

"I eat, I sleep, I breathe freedom. Until you've lost it, you don't know what it is."

—Everett Alvarez Jr.,
Vietnam POW,
Confined 8½ years

"I think freedom is the most important word in the English language. We can lose our families, our fortunes, our health, but when one loses his freedom, there is nothing else."

—Ralph Levenberg,
World War II POW,
Confined four years

BOWLING GREEN — David Eugene Cox came out of the woods of Caroline County yesterday afternoon atop the shoulders of the searcher who found him about 1 1/4 miles from the Woodford home he had wandered away from 22 hours before.

The 10-year-old looked scruffy and tired, but emergency medical technicians reported he was in fine shape, though frightened from the ordeal that began about 7 p.m. Tuesday.

That's the time David's babysitter, Sandra M. Franklin, reported last seeing him, playing with her dog in the yard. She notified the Caroline Sheriff's Department of his absence after David didn't re-

National Guardsman killed, three men hurt in wreck at A. P. Hill

By AMY SATTERTHWAITE
Staff Reporter

A 42-year-old National Guard sergeant from Staunton was killed and three other soldiers were injured Sunday during a traffic accident at Fort A.P. Hill in Caroline County.

Staff Sgt. Larry H. Comer, who was driving one of two military trucks involved in the collision, died at the scene, army officials said.

Comer and three fellow members of the 2nd Brigade, 29th Light Infantry Division, were riding down a paved road at the base during a heavy rainstorm when the accident occurred about 5 p.m., officials said.

An oncoming truck weighing about five tons was hauling a trailer and the trailer jackknifed in the road in front of Comer's vehicle, said Capt. Stewart MacInnis, public affairs officer for the Virginia Guard. Comer's truck, which weighed about 1½ tons, struck the trailer.

The accident occurred after a daily training session had ended, officials said.

The three injured soldiers, all passengers in the truck Comer was driving, were flown to the hospital in an army helicopter. No injuries were reported in the other vehicle.

Staff Sgt. Jack H. Holloway, 45, of Staunton, is in stable condition at DeWitt Army Hospital at Fort Belvoir in Northern Virginia.

Sgt. Cecil Cooper, 43, of Staunton was treated and released from Fairfax Hospital.

Army officials are withholding the name of the third soldier until they are able to contact his wife. The 27-year-old remains at Fairfax Hospital. Hospital officials would give no report on his condition.

The 29th Light Infantry Division has been at Fort A.P. Hill since July 23 for its annual two weeks of training. The 2nd Brigade has headquarters in Staunton.

The Army Criminal Investigations Command and the Army Safety Center are investigating the accident, said Bruce Hopkins, a spokesman for Fort A.P. Hill.

"It is routine procedure to have this investigation at any time there is a death," Hopkins said.
